

ABOUT ME

My name is Martyn.
I used to go to Headlands and now I am a graphic designer and gallery curator

ABOUT MY JOB

My job involves liaising with clients about their requirements, budget and thoughts. Then, turning these thoughts into visual ideas and designs, eventually arriving at a preferred design that the client adopts.

This can then be used in every type of marketing - traditional stationery (letterheads, business cards, invoices, brochures etc) or social media sites, websites, shop front signs, A boards, advertising in journals etc.

SCHOOL RESULTS

I left Headlands in 1981 with various GCEs - O and A Level, plus 16+ and CSEs

FAVOURITE MEMORIES

Sixth form days, some of the teachers, tennis and art classes with Mr Pearson.

WHAT I DID NEXT

I went to college and achieved a Distinction Diploma in Graphics and Photography

MY ADVICE TO STUDENTS

Work hard and use your initiative and explore all avenues of design. Don't just go for the first thing that comes into your head - develop designs and keep going until you arrive at something you are really happy with.

Also, most importantly - make sure you stick to the brief and deliver something that satisfies the client. Customer care is number one.
